SECTION 1

Your role at a glance

IN SHORT

As a panelist, you interview the candidate with the rest of the panel and then score them on DBL's ten fixed criteria, adding your recommendation: Select, Reject or Talent Pool. You can do it from the personal link in your invitation email — on a phone, between sessions — without signing in.

As a delegated interviewer, the recruiter has handed you shortlisted candidates to run their first interview: you schedule it, hold it, record the result and say who goes through.

PANELISTS

- Attend the interview (online or in person)
- Score ten criteria and give a recommendation
- Submit from the emailed link or My Interviews

DELEGATED INTERVIEWERS

- Schedule the first interview
- Record attendance and test marks
- Say whether each candidate goes through

WHAT STARTS YOUR WORK

An interview invitation email — or a notification that candidates were sent to you.

WHAT HAPPENS NEXT

The recruiter reads every panelist's marks and recommendation, then decides. Your recommendation is advice, not the decision.

SECTION 2

Your invitation

When you are added to an interview panel, the system emails you with:

- the candidate, the post and the round (first, second or final interview);
- the date and time — always Dhaka time (GMT+6);
- for an online interview, the Google Meet link; for an in-person one, the location and room;
- your personal marking link.

You also receive a Google Calendar invitation — unless you have turned email notifications off on your profile, in which case you are left off the calendar invite as well. If the interview is rescheduled, you receive a notice with the new time; your marking link stays the same.

> Who is on the panel
> Whoever arranges the interview splits the panel into From HR Department and From other departments. HR panelists see one extra section on the evaluation form: the candidate's facilities (below).

SECTION 3

Scoring a candidate

From the emailed link (no sign-in) or from My Work › My Interviews (signed in) — the form is the same.

3.1 The evaluation page

The page is in two parts. On the left, the candidate in DBL's shortlisting-sheet format: Name & Mobile No., Age (estimated from the SSC or HSC year when no date of birth is given), Total Service, Educational Status, and Positions Worked & Companies, with a link to the Full CV. On the right, the ten criteria. On a phone the two stack.

1. Score each criterion
   Each of the ten criteria offers four answers. Choose one; your answer is echoed in the criterion's heading so a finished sheet reads back at a glance.
2. Add your comments
   Overall impression, strengths, areas of concern.
3. Give your recommendation
   Choose Select, Reject or Talent Pool. It is required. "Talent Pool" means a good candidate who is not right for this post — they are kept for future vacancies.
4. Submit
   The bar at the bottom shows your running score, the percentage and how many criteria are done. When all ten are scored and a recommendation is chosen, select Submit Evaluation.

After you submit, the link shows your submitted evaluation — your marks, "You recommended ..." and your comments. It cannot be changed from there; if you made a mistake, tell the recruiter.

3.2 The ten criteria

Criterion	Marks	The four answers offered
Education (related to the role)	8	Required, partly related · Required, related · Above required, partly related · Above required, related
Experience	8	Same four answers as Education
Training	4	Basic · Relevant · Adequate relevant · Abroad relevant

Criterion	Marks	The four answers offered
IT knowledge	4	Basic · Work perform · Intermediate · Expert
Leadership	4	Low · Moderate · High · Very high
Attitude & approach	4	Average · Fair · Good · Excellent
Presentation skill (includes written-test weight)	8	Average · Fair · Good · Excellent
Discretion on decision making	4	Rarely effective · Somehow effective · Effective · Highly effective
Position scarcity	4	Available · Partially available · Occasionally available · Rarely available
Complexity of work	2	Undemanding · Quiet · Complicated · Challenging
Total	50	Plus a required recommendation: Select, Reject or Talent Pool

3.3 HR panelists: the facilities section

If you are on the panel from the HR Department, the form also asks for the candidate's package, which you gather in the interview: present and expected salary, the benefits they receive now (dormitory, family accommodation, lunch, pick & drop, profit share, tax paid by the company, anything else) and their transport pick-up point. This feeds salary negotiation and facility planning. There is one facilities record per candidate, shared by every HR panelist and the recruiter. If a colleague has changed it since you opened the page, your save is refused and you are asked to reload, so nobody overwrites anyone else.

SECTION 4

My Interviews

If you can sign in, My Work › My Interviews lists every interview where you are a panelist, with To mark and completed ones. Open one to score it — the same form as the emailed link. A cancelled interview says so; no marks are needed.

Reminders
Each morning the system reminds panelists who have interviews still to mark. Submitting your evaluation stops the reminders.

SECTION 5

Running a first interview handed to you

For colleagues the recruiter asks to run a candidate's first interview — usually Factory HR, sometimes a named manager.

When the recruiter selects you in Send for interview, you are notified and receive the Interviewer role for that unit if you had no role before — enough to sign in and see those candidates, nothing more. Assigned Candidates appears under My Work.

1. To schedule
   Tick the candidates for one session and schedule it: date and time (Dhaka time), online or in person (location and room), and the panel.
2. Scheduled
   After the interview, record Interviewed or Did not attend. Enter any written or computer-test marks assigned with the hand-off — a mark you enter is then locked for you.
3. Decision due
   Once the panel has marked, select Decide: Yes (the candidate goes through — to your unit's Factory HR Head if there is one, otherwise to the recruiter) or No (a reason is required; you may also send the regret letter).
4. Done
   Your decision is recorded. The recruiter books the second or final interview.

The Factory HR guide describes each of these screens in full.

SECTION 6

Questions and answers

Q Do I need a password to mark?
No. Your personal link opens your evaluation directly. Please do not forward it — anyone holding it could mark in your name.

Q My link does not work.
Ask the recruiter to send it again; they can issue a new link for you.

Q The interview time looks wrong.
Times are shown in Dhaka time (GMT+6). If you are travelling, convert from GMT+6.

Q Must I choose a recommendation?
Yes. Ten scores say how the candidate did; your recommendation says what you think should happen. Both are needed to submit.

Q Can I see the other panelists' marks?
Not on your form. The recruiter, and where relevant the Factory HR Head, see every panelist's marks and recommendation.
